* * The first complete edition of the first English translation of Homer. The engraved title to the Odyssey is frequently wanting, the first twelve books of that poem evidently being the edition published about 1614. Indeed I am inclined to think that the whole work is made up of (1) The Iliads of Homer, printed before Nov., 1611, with a new title and the engraved plate "To the Immortall Memorie . . ." added, (2) Homer's Odysseys, (the xii first Bookes), issued about 1614, and (3) Books xiii.-xxiv. of the Odyssey, printed first about 1615.

* * The earliest edition of any part of Horace with a date, and an edition which has been generally regarded by bibliographers as apocryphal. It appeared in the catalogues of Petau and Mansart, but no copy seems to have been sold in England until the Sunderland Library was dispersed. There has been some confusion in the minds of bibliographers through mistaking this edition for the one (now in the British Museum) sold at Askew's sale, which has no date. Probably the first book in which printed signatures occur.

This copy, Miss Currier, 1493, with her bookplate. . . . An extra illustrated copy, containing the following prints and maps; the descriptions are taken from ms. in an unknown hand.

1. Portrait of Howell, before the face was engraved, proof, believed to be unique.
 2. The same; with the arms, after the alteration.
 3. Map of London, engraved on copper, from Hoefnagle's "Civitates Orbis Terrarum".

4. The same; engraved on wood.
 This curious and interesting plan of London was undoubtedly executed coeval with the commencement of the reign of Elizabeth and is certainly the most ancient prospect of it existing in print.

What particularly authenticates my assertion as to its date, is the spire seen on St. Paul's Cathedral which was destroyed by lightning in 1561. No other ancient prospect exhibits the spire except that published by Hoefnagle (in his Civitates Orbis Terrarum) which was copied from this plan corrected (See no. 3. Aggas's view, the next in point of antiquity, was published at the commencement of James the First's reign which the date on it proves as well as the greeting to the King; his plan exhibits the Cathedral without the spire. I have reason to believe this map was executed in wood by John Bettes who published a similar one of Norwich which bears his initials and was printed by John Day in 1558.

5. View of London, engraved by Hollar (first state of the plate).

6 (at p. 20). View of London Bridge (copy from a supposed unique print).

[? London, ? Wynkyn de Worde, ? 1534.]

Fol. 10½ in. Without place, printer's name or date. Gothic letter, with printed signatures, and numeration, but without catchwords; 2 columns, woodcuts, 42 lines.

Collation: A-Z⁸, 7⁸, 7⁸, AA-FF⁸, GG⁷; ? 194 leaves (1-194).

Leaf 1^a (sig. A. 1.) Huon of Burdeaux. Folio primo. [col. 1.] ¶ Here begynneth the boke | of duke Huon of burdeux & of | them that issued fro hym. Ca | pitulo. i. | . . . The numbering is regular from 1 to 191 with the exception of a few printers' errors. Leaf 192, the last leaf present, wants nearly the whole of the outer column and part of the inner. The last line of the last page present is:—god and nature coude not amende her, |. In the complete quires four leaves are signed and two unsigned. The quire GG has five leaves signed, the sixth wants the front part which would have the signature if any were present. It is conjectured that only two leaves are deficient at the end, making GG a quire of eight leaves, five signed and three unsigned which would be in accordance with the rest of the book. There are 69 woodcuts, but many of them are repeated several times. In addition to the deficiency just noticed, there are possibly several preliminary leaves wanting. These would contain the title, translator's preface, table of chapter headings, etc.
